Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1 – 5, 8 – 9, 11, 13 – 15, 21 – 28 and 30 - 32 are pending and allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The closest prior art of Alexandra J. Adrian (Pub. # US 2005/0027654 A1) teaches an online business payment method that provides credit and cash flow management for at least one seller of products or services, at least one buyer of the products or services, and a financial institution via a business payment system accessible via a network connection. The method includes first establishing a credit line for the buyer by the financial institution. Next, placing a purchase order for a product or service by the buyer to the seller and entering a purchase order number into the business payment system. Next, accepting the purchase order by the seller and providing the product or service to the buyer. Next, sending an invoice by the seller to the buyer and entering the invoice into the business payment system against the purchase order number. Next, approving the invoice by the buyer, entering the approval into the business payment system and notifying the financial institution of the approved invoice by the business payment system. Finally, approving payment of the approved invoice by the financial institution and paying the invoice by transferring money from the buyer's credit line to an account of the seller. The seller sets a payment term for the invoice and pays a seller's fee to the financial institution upon receipt of the invoice payment. The seller's fee depends upon the invoice payment term. The buyer pays interest to the financial institution when the invoice payment term is not met. Access to the online business payment system is secure and selective access permissions are defined for each member.

In regarding to independent claims 1 and 21, Adrian taken either individually or in combination with other prior art of record fails to teach or render obvious using a method for processing a payment having a variable payment term from a financial account, comprising:
receiving, at a processing device, from a buyer having a financial account, an identification of a seller's invoice including an invoiced amount and a first payment term; receiving, at the processing device, from the buyer, an approval to pay the seller's invoice using the financial account on a first date corresponding to the first payment term, wherein the first payment term has a corresponding first financing fee; receiving, at the processing device, from the seller, a request to receive payment on the invoice on a second date corresponding to a second payment term, wherein the second payment term is shorter than the first payment term; determining, at the processing device, a second financing fee based on the second payment term, wherein the second financing fee is greater than the first financing fee; providing, at the processing device, to the supplier, a payment for the invoice from the financial account on the second date, the payment corresponding to the second financing fee; and charging, at the processing device, the buyer the invoiced amount on the first date.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
